

Artloom Tapestries

A DISCRIMINATING woman recently said, "The curtains and portieres are of more importance than the rugs or carpets used in a room, because the former stand up clearly before you—impress themselves upon you—whereas the floor-coverings do not."

And she was right. Just take a look around yourself and see if your hangings do not make or mar the atmosphere of good taste and refinement in any room.

How imperative then is careful judgment in choosing. The Artloom Tapestries are a guarantee of correct design and artistic effect.

Just make it a point to see the Artloom Tapestries the very next time you go shopping—curtains, table and couch covers. Their artistic beauty and wearing qualities are out of all proportion to their modest prices.

Murderous Fury of a Mob

Ray Stannard Baker's wonderful description of the Atlanta riot in the April American Magazine reads like the story of a Russian massacre. When the fury of the mob reached the highest pitch, the ruling passion to kill conquered reason, and men gave themselves up wildly to murder. The "right" negroes were not punished at all, but innocent men their stead. Mr. Baker reports:

"A lame, boot-black, an inoffensive, industrious negro boy, at that moment actually at work shining a man's shoes, was dragged out and cuffed, kicked and beaten to death in the street. Another young negro was chased and stabbed to death with jack-knives in the most unspeakably horrible manner. The mob entered barber shops where respectable negro men were at work shaving white customers, pulled them away from their chairs and killed them. Cars were stopped and inoffensive negroes were thrown through the windows or dragged out and beaten. They did not stop with killing and maiming; they broke into hardware stores and armed themselves, they demolished not only negro barber shops and restaurants, but they robbed stores kept by white men."
